

Royal Canadian Air Cadets Guide to The Duke of Edinburgh's Award

It's EASY to earn your Duke of Edinburgh's Award as an Air Cadet! This guide is designed to help you achieve your Bronze, Silver, and Gold Awards. First thing's first, you need to register with your Duke of Edinburgh's Award Divisional Office to receive your Participant's Record Book. Next, start logging activities you do as an Air Cadet that count toward earning your award! It's that EASY! www.dukeofed.org

Residential Project – This project can be completed at any level of the Award but is required in order to complete the Gold level. This should consist of voluntary service or training away from home over a period of not less than 5 consecutive days and 4 nights; see page 28 of your Participant's Record Book for more details.

Participant's Record Book

Take some time to get familiar with your Participant's Record Book. It contains valuable information about program requirements and will be used to document your progress throughout the Bronze, Silver and Gold Awards.

The Adventurous Journey Report

The adventurous journey report is an important aspect in earning your award. Ensure you read pages 21 & 22 in your record book for all the details. Here are some extra tips that will help you:

- Be neat and organized, this will help you save time.
- Include photos from your journey as they help tell your story.
- Your report should read like a diary and should tell the story of your adventure. You should have an entry for each day that describes the events that took place.
- Include the number of hours per day and distance traveled.
- Be sure to include the purpose of your trip.
- Include a copy of your map with the route highlighted and your route card.
- Include your personal and group equipment list.
- Include a copy of your menu.
- Ensure you have a concluding statement. (e.g. what did you like? What would you do differently?)
- Put your report together soon after you return from your trip; this way it will be fresh in your mind and you will have it complete!

Who can be Your Assessor?

A qualified assessor is any adult who is knowledgeable and experienced in the activity to be evaluated such as a leader, coach, or instructor. They must be prepared to work with you throughout the activity and be able to note challenge and improvement. Your parents / guardians may only be used as your assessors if relevant to the selected activity.

Submitting Award Applications

After completing the requirements for an award level, submit the completed application form and checklist, together with your Participant's Record Book and adventurous journey report to your cadet D of E Award leader. Hand-written submissions must be neat and readable. Include photos, certificates and any other documents that support your application. Putting your work into a binder is a great idea!

What is a Route Card?

What: A route card contains simply written directions for moving from one location to another. A route card must be completed for all practice and qualifying journeys.

Why: The route card is an important part of safely planning and carrying out the journey.

When: The route card should be completed prior to the journey.

Who: A copy of the route card should be left at home with an emergency contact. You should also carry your own copy with you at all times during the journey. A final copy of your route card must be submitted with your award application.

All of the above classes will count as physical recreation time toward any level of your D of E Award. Transpose the date and number of hours (e.g. 0.5 hrs) you spend participating in physical recreation into your Participant's Record Book. Make sure you have a qualified assessor who can evaluate your physical recreation progress.

Service		Date	Hours		Date	Hours		Date	Hours		Date	Hours
	M102.01			M202.01			M302.01			M402.01
	C102.01						M309.07			M409.05

										C409.05
										C409.06
										502 PC
										503 PC

All of these classes count as community service time toward any level of your D of E Award. Log the amount of time you spend in each of these classes in your Participant's Record Book.

Here are some examples of community service that could count towards your D of E Award: community parades, food drives, fundraising, community clean-ups, youth leadership, and assisting veterans or local charities.

Skills	Aircraft maintenance	Coaching a sports team	Ground school
	Aircrew survival	Drill	Instructional techniques
	Aviation studies	Effective speaking	Marksmanship
	Band	Flying	Model building
	Biathlon (shooting)	First aid	Music training
	Chess	Flag party	Orienteering / map and compass
	Camp craft	Gliding	Officiating and refereeing

Here is a list of skills to choose from that you can obtain in the Air Cadet Program. Ensure you have a qualified assessor at your unit who can note improvement in your chosen skill. NOTE: Biathlon is a sport; however, you can choose to use the shooting portion of the sport as your skill.

Aviation studies - you may use the air cadet mandatory training program to complete aviation studies as your skill, providing the program is structured so aviation training (e.g. navigation, airmanship) is evenly distributed over the duration of your skill. You may also choose to study aviation in addition to your cadet training, ensuring you show improvement in your knowledge.

Note: The above table is intended to be a guide, enabling cadets to receive credit for preliminary training using the mandatory cadet program. This guide may also be used by leaders to develop supplementary training sessions using the Cadet Program instructional guides.

The Adventurous Journey, What Counts?

A practice journey and qualifying journey will need to be completed outside of mandatory cadet training. It may be possible to complete your Bronze and Silver practice trips during a unit aircrew survival weekend, providing you:

- Assist in preparing a meal each day.
- Are able to test equipment that will be used on the qualifying trip.
- Can be allocated time to practice using the mode of travel to be used on your qualifying trip in order to test personal equipment (there is no required distance for the practice journey, use half the distance of the qualifying trip as a general guide.)
- Create a route card prior to the trip outlining the route that will be travelled.

Adventurous Journey Opportunities

If you are a member of a cadet unit that is not able to provide the opportunity for you to complete your adventurous journey, have your leader contact your Regional Award Office. The Cadet Program is committed to providing all cadets with the opportunity to participate in an adventurous journey, to ensure that cadets do not have obstacles preventing them from achieving all three levels of The D of E Award. It is still your responsibility to ensure you complete the required training prior to the expedition, and that you participate in all aspects of planning and organizing your adventurous journeys.

Responsibilities of the Cadet D of E Leader

- Ensure that a renewal form is sent annually to your D of E Award Divisional Office.
- Mentor cadets in all aspects of the award, ensuring their chosen activities (e.g. skill, service) meet award criteria.
- Help the cadets stay organized.
- Attend cadet's planning meetings in a mentor capacity.
- Help the cadet find a qualified assessor to supervise their adventurous journey (if there is no one available at your unit, contact your Regional Award Office and make arrangements for the cadet).
- Review cadet's Participant's Record Book, complete the submission checklist and sign the award application prior to submitting the award for review.
- Plan Bronze award ceremonies and Silver pin presentations.

To the left is an example of how an assessor might fill out the cadet's Participant's Record Book. Ensure the assessor's qualifications and experience is relevant to the cadet's chosen activity.
